College Lectureship in Medicine

The College Lectureship appointment is initially for 3 years with the possibility of extension. The appointee will be elected to an Official Fellowship in Medicine.

The appointee will be expected to deliver supervisions in a core subject, for example Molecules in Medical Sciences or Homeostasis to first year students. This post would be especially suitable for somebody at Clinician Scientist / Clinical Lecturer level. In due course the Fellow would be expected to take on some Directing of Studies. An alternative option would be for the individual to take a lead in clinical supervision (organised through the medical school).

The appointee would be expected to deliver a minimum of 80 hours of college teaching during the academic year, directing studies for at least one year group in their subject. College offers some flexibility in the use of earmarked hours to support various educational aims.

Stipend will be on scale £3,907 – £5,091 for 80 hours or £5,860 – £7,637 for 120 hours according to experience. NB Figures are based on current stipends, which are due for annual increase on 1 August 2018.

There is an additional stipend for acting as DoS.

Start date: 01.10.18

GIRTON COLLEGE

Girton was founded as the first residential college for the higher education of women in the United Kingdom in 1869, and has been mixed since 1977. It now has a balance of sexes at senior and junior levels, encourages diversity in all its dimensions, and is a champion of widening participation. Girton is one of the larger Colleges in the University of Cambridge, having some 80 Fellows, 480 undergraduates and 200 graduate students. The main buildings (substantially designed by Alfred Waterhouse and his successors) stand in 50 acres of grounds to the north-west of the city centre on the Huntingdon Road. There is a Senior Combination Room (SCR) in the city centre with an opportunity for Fellows to dine nearby as required.

Girton is a self governing community of scholars governed by its Charter and Statutes. The college depends on its Official Fellowship taken part in its governance and committees. A key thematic focus in the strategic academic plan is to support a world-class Fellowship; Girton does so by earmarking funds for research, travel and publication, and supporting a range of scholarly (including interdisciplinary) activities.
(research seminars, public lectures, informal meetings and so on). There are excellent sports facilities on site, including a gym and indoor heated swimming pool. There is also a vibrant music community, including a Chapel choir and varied instrumental ensembles.

We also enjoy a varied social calendar and close links with the local community in Girton village. A flourishing and expanding postgraduate community forms an integral part of this mix, based in purpose built accommodation at Swirles Court, Eddington, a short walk from the main site. There are also social events which aim to involve families. Meals taken at the common table are free of charge and are non-taxable. These are provided at all times, save when the Kitchens are closed for short periods.

Normally Fellows offer 80 or 120 teaching (or teaching equivalent) hours across the academic year, directing studies for at least one year group in their subject. The College offers some flexibility in the use of earmarked hours to support various educational aims.

The main administrative body is the College Council, which meets regularly during Full Term and comprises the Mistress, Vice-Mistress, Bursar, Senior Tutor, nine Fellows elected by the Governing Body, and, for unreserved business, five student representatives. The day-to-day management of the College is undertaken by various College Officers, principally the Mistress, Bursar, Senior Tutor and Junior Bursar. All Official Fellows are members of the Governing Body and Augmented Council, which normally meet once per term. All Directors of Studies are members of the Education Board, which meets termly, and there are opportunities to serve on other college committees, according to a Fellow’s interests. Fellows are usually actively involved in subject societies and in the wider academic life of the college. Further information about the College is available at www.girton.cam.ac.uk

Girton admits around 10 preclinical medical students a year. There are currently two official medically-qualified fellows, an official fellow who supervises pharmacology but is not medically qualified and a medically-qualified Bye-Fellow who supervises anatomy. There are four Life Fellows in Medicine: Profs Abrahams, Sherwood, Himsworth and Dr Warren. There is an active Medical and Veterinary Student society and a series of medical social events throughout the year.

Clinical School: All undergraduate students remain in Cambridge for their clinical studies. While clinical students are largely supported by the clinical school, the Clinical Director of Studies still has a significant input to their training.
